

Accessibility & Standards Compliance

1. JavaScript

Our website uses JavaScript in order to deliver some of its functionality. In general, it should work and display adequately when you have JavaScript turned off.

The following functionality will not work when javascript is not enabled in your browser:

- The social Kosibah page - this is because we rely on JavaScript functions to retrieve information from Facebook, Twitter and Flickr.
- The Facebook functionality relies on JavaScript being enabled in your browser.

We are extremely grateful to the team at jQuery and the jQuery community for the underlying JavaScript libraries that we use.

2. Access keys and keyboard shortcuts

For users who prefer to use their keyboards to control the screen, we have provided the following shortcuts and access keys:

Keyboard shortcut	Function
Spacebar	Pause or start the slideshows
Control + Left Arrow	Move to previous slide
Control + Right Arrow	Move to next slide
Escape	Will close any of the popup windows

Access keys allow you to move directly to certain pages by using a combination of keyboard keys plus a number on your keyboard. The exact combination of keys varies by browser (and not all browsers support accesskeys).

The wikipedia article at: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Access\_key explains access keys and the various key combinations used by each browser. Our access key assignments follow UK Government guidelines.

down the page and the controls are hidden). The Google team is working on a fix which is not due to any code on the Kosibah site.

- Some YouTube videos may not display in iPhone or iPad - you will get a message saying "This video is not available". This is because they were loaded onto the YouTube site as Flash videos and iOS does not support Flash.
- The YouTube code shows a border around videos in Internet Explorer 8. This doesn't appear on other browsers and doesn't affect the viewing experience. The only way to remove it is to provide non-standard code.

If you discover any other problems with the site, please let us know and we will try to rectify.
